

Healthier Furniture

A Guide for Purchasing Furniture Free of the Hazardous Handful Chemicals

August 2017

CEH20

Healthier Furniture Products without the “Hazardous Handful” Chemicals

The Center for Environmental Health (CEH) created this guide to help furniture purchasers identify safer products without key chemicals of concern.

The products in this document have been self-reported by the manufacturer as being compliant with restrictions for the following chemicals/materials of concern (aka the “Hazardous Handful”):

- Formaldehyde and other Volatile Organic Compounds (VOCs) emissions
- Antimicrobials
- Flame retardant chemicals
- Polyvinyl chloride (PVC)
- Per- and poly-fluorinated chemicals used as stain/water/oil resistant treatments

The healthier furniture options were compiled from product lists developed in support of Practice Greenhealth’s Healthier Hospitals program, and identified on the Commonwealth of Massachusetts’ EPP Furniture Guide and by the State of Minnesota as products that meet restrictions on the hazardous handful on the current NASPO ValuePoint Office Contract (see Sustainable Furniture Summary). This guide will be updated regularly as new information becomes available.

Note: Purchaser customization, modification and fabric choice can impact a product’s ability to meet the restrictions on the hazardous handful. Therefore, purchasers are advised to work closely with their vendor to identify specific configurations and fabric choices that will meet the specifications.

CEH and Health Care Without Harm have developed technical specifications that can be used by purchasers in Requests for Proposals, Requests for Information or in contracts to avoid the targeted chemicals of concern.

For further information on healthier furniture, please see the full CEH purchaser e-guide, Kicking Toxics Out of Office Furniture.
